

Dayna Flory Interiors | 1ST

Entering this foyer, guests are greeted by an inviting wallpaper — over-scaled flowers painted on Manila grasscloth. The indigo color was selected to complement the bench's vintage-inspired velvet. Layering the two textures, one large-scale pattern and one small, creates a playful look. The wall treatment is printed on large panels with no repeat, and the exact placement of each flower was carefully decided — first with a scaled drawing, and then confirmed on-site with the installer.

Marianne Jones, LLC | 2ND

Port Mfg. & Design | 3RD

1ST | VanBrouck | LUXE Homes,
with Ellwood Interiors

A timeless coastal color palette of soft grays, sands, and crisp white, punctuated with blue hues, flows throughout this Shingle-style residence. In the kitchen, piel-serpentine-marble countertops and travertine-tile backsplashes complement the charcoal-glazed white cabinetry, and the prep island is awash in a charcoal-glazed sky blue. The master suite showcases soothing taupe and white, while a soft, dreamy sky-blue is featured in the laundry room. A nautical-inspired children's bedroom features maritime navy-blues and salty-whites; in the music room, muted sky blues set a serene mood.

2ND | Angelini & Associates Architects, with Beechwood Building & Design

3RD | Port Mfg. &
Design

Designer's Process

With thoughtfully chosen fabrics and finishes, the color flows throughout this house (shown at left) in a way that charms with both a youthful exuberance and a spirited sophistication.

— Port Mfg. & Design

1ST | Port Mfg. & Design,
with Designs Designs

When selecting fabric for these draperies, it was important that nothing competed with the bold and colorful color palette, or added an unexciting element to the design. The citrus-toned ombre draperies add the perfect touch of color without overpowering the space; the ombre design was an unexpected and tasteful way to vertically fill this room with color. The draperies, which add height to the room with their transition of color, also unify the windows. This window treatment was critical to making the room feel cozy.

2ND | Dayna Flory
Interiors

3RD | AMW Design Studio,
with Vantay Draperies

Port Mfg. & Design | 1ST

In a master bedroom renovation, an unused sunroom became the new master closet. With window walls on all three sides, the most efficient solution was to build back-to-back "his" and "hers" cabinet towers for abundant, organized storage. The burl wood accents and furniture-style base of the dressing table were inspired by fine antique furniture. Additional closet space is concealed behind mirrored front closets in the next room. The mirrors reflect the light from the French doors and sunroom, making the space feel bright and open.

Neat Method Professional Organizing, | 2ND
with California Closets

Maison | 3RD
Birmingham